

SUPPORT CORNELL COOPERATIVE EXTENSION OF CHENANGO COUNTY

Dear Friend of CCE Chenango:

Without the support of people like you, CCE Chenango County could not continue to offer programs that benefit youth, homeowners, farmers, business people and consumers across Chenango County.

Over the past year, CCE has helped hundreds of area youth learn about the world around them, and what part they can play in that world, through our 4-H Youth Development Program. We have conducted a number of Veterinary Skills Programs for local farmers, to assist them in providing care for their animals in order to save money or to be able to assist a veterinarian in treating the animals. We created a new program for Chenango County residents interested in food preparation and preservation, the Master Food Preservers Program, which is a volunteer training program focusing on food safety, canning, freezing and other food preservation techniques. The Master Food Preservers have already begun volunteering by providing instruction throughout the county to pass on their newly acquired knowledge.

The need for program funding continues to rise. We ask that you consider making an investment in that programming by filling out and returning this form with your pledge or donation. You can rest assured that the funds you invest in programming with Cornell Cooperative Extension of Chenango County will stay within this county as we work toward a better future for all of Chenango County. Thank you for your consideration. We look forward to continuing to serve you.
